DETAILED ACTION

1. Claims 1 – 21 are currently pending.

Double Patenting

The nonstatutory double patenting rejection is based on a judicially created doctrine grounded in public policy (a policy reflected in the statute) so as to prevent the unjustified or improper timewise extension of the "right to exclude" granted by a patent and to prevent possible harassment by multiple assignees. A nonstatutory obviousness-type double patenting rejection is appropriate where the conflicting claims are not identical, but at least one examined application claim is not patentably distinct from the reference claim(s) because the examined application claim is either anticipated by, or would have been obvious over, the reference claim(s). See, e.g., In re Berg, 140 F.3d 1428, 46 USPQ2d 1226 (Fed. Cir. 1998); In re Goodman, 11 F.3d 1046, 29 USPQ2d 2010 (Fed. Cir. 1993); In re Longi, 759 F.2d 887, 225 USPQ 645 (Fed. Cir. 1985); In re Van Ornum, 686 F.2d 937, 214 USPQ 761 (CCPA 1982); In re Vogel, 422 F.2d 438, 164 USPQ 619 (CCPA 1970); and In re Thorington, 418 F.2d 528, 163 USPQ 644 (CCPA 1969).

A timely filed terminal disclaimer in compliance with 37 CFR 1.321(c) or 1.321(d) may be used to overcome an actual or provisional rejection based on a nonstatutory double patenting ground provided the conflicting application or patent either is shown to be commonly owned with this application, or claims an invention made as a result of activities undertaken within the scope of a joint research agreement.

Effective January 1, 1994, a registered attorney or agent of record may sign a terminal disclaimer. A terminal disclaimer signed by the assignee must fully comply with 37 CFR 3.73(b).

2. Instant Claims 1 – 21 provisionally rejected on the ground of nonstatutory obviousness-type double patenting as being unpatentable over amended claims 1 – 18 and 28 – 31 of copending application number 10/758,865. Although the conflicting claims are not identical, they are not patentably distinct from each other because the instant case, all elements of instant claims correspond to the amended claims of the copending application, except in the instant claims "transmitting a family pairing key... generating a copy protection key ..., encrypting the decrypted program materials ..., transferring the encrypted program material", are referred in the amended copending application claims as "decrypting program materials ..., encrypting the decrypted program materials ..., transferring the encrypted program material". Copending claims recite "decrypting the transferred copy protection key at the client receiver ..." and "decrypting the transferred program materials at the client receiver" which encompasses the instant application claims "generating the copy protection key at the client receiver using the family pairing key" and "decrypting the transferred program materials at the client receiver". Thus copending application claims anticipates the instant claims.

Claims of the instant application are anticipated by patent claims in that the patent claims contains all the limitations of the instant application. Claims of the instant application therefore is not patentably distinct from the earlier patent claims and as such are unpatentable for obvious-type double patenting (In re Goodman (CAFC) 29 USPQ2d 2010 (12/3/1993)).

This is a provisional obviousness-type double patenting rejection because the conflicting claims have not in fact been patented.

3. Instant Claims 1 – 21 provisionally rejected on the ground of nonstatutory obviousness-type double patenting as being unpatentable over claims 1 – 39 of U.S. Patent 7,203,314. Although the conflicting claims are not identical, they are not patentably distinct from each other because the instant case, all elements of instant claims correspond to the claims of the Patent 7,203,314 claims, except in the instant claims "transmitting a family pairing key..., generating a copy protection key ..., encrypting the decrypted program materials ..., transferring the encrypted program material", are referred in the Patent claims as "...accepting encrypted access control information and the program material encrypted according to a first encryption key ... a re-encryptor module, for re-encrypting the decrypted access control information ... a copy protection encryption module ... to produce ... encryption key". Patent claims recite "a second decryptor module for decrypting the re-encrypted access control information to produce the first encryption key" which encompasses the instant application claims "generating the copy protection key at the client receiver using the family pairing key" and "decrypting the transferred program materials at the client receiver". Thus patent claims anticipate the instant claims.

Claims of the instant application are anticipated by patent claims in that the patent claims contains all the limitations of the instant application. Claims of the instant application therefore is not patentably distinct from the earlier patent claims and as such are unpatentable for obvious-type double patenting (In re Goodman (CAFC) 29 USPQ2d 2010 (12/3/1993)).

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 112

The following is a quotation of the second paragraph of 35 U.S.C. 112:

The specification shall conclude with one or more claims particularly pointing out and distinctly claiming the subject matter which the applicant regards as his invention.

4. Claims 1 – 21 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 112, second paragraph, as being incomplete for omitting essential structural cooperative relationships of elements, such omission amounting to a gap between the necessary structural connections. See MPEP § 2172.01. The omitted structural cooperative relationships are: "generating a session key for encrypting and decrypting program materials shared with the client ... session key is then stored in the memory of TDM ...for use in encrypting the program materials by an AES encryption algorithm".

Examiner requests amending the claims to clarify missing element in the recited limitations.
